

When Biting Starts

When biting occurs in the classroom, it requires a thoughtful and comprehensive response. Key steps include implementing safety practices, communicating with the families of both the child who bit and the child who was bitten, assessing the classroom environment, and evaluating the effectiveness of current strategies.

This session will provide an opportunity to reflect on the procedures to follow when biting happens. We will examine how to ensure active supervision and review essential safety practices for addressing biting incidents in early childhood settings.
